ProCompounding Pharmacy Celebrates Ribbon Cutting for New Facility in Arden, North Carolina

Arden, NC June 26, 2019 – ProCompounding Pharmacy has long served this region remotely from their home location in Johnson City, Tennessee. With the opening of their new location at 77 Airport Rd., Arden, North Carolina, they can now better serve the local community in western North Carolina.

Compounding involves a creative mix of art and science to produce personalized medications that meet the unique needs of both human and animal patients. Examples include topical pain creams that work without concern for addiction, medicated sinus rinses that effectively treat sinusitis without inducing systemic antibiotic resistance, natural hormone replacement therapy and transdermal gels that treat certain thyroid conditions in cats by simply rubbing the medication into the thin skin of the ear.

ProCompounding Pharmacy CEO, Steve Lane, Pharm.D., spoke about the innovative service their pharmacy provides. “In short, we are compounding specialists, not generalists as most are. You immediately see the difference as you walk through the front door with our state-of-the-art compounding lab fully visible to the public. You can literally watch your medication made from scratch with the reassurance that it is being prepared by the only fully accredited compounding pharmacy in the greater Asheville region.”

ProCompounding Pharmacy has been an independently and family owned pharmacy since 1936. To learn more about the company and their services, visit their website at www.procompounding.com or give them a call.
